Mev likes showing me things
on the internet.

TV shows, extreme sports, arts, magic,

science, technology,
humour etc.

Isn't it interesting?

Um...
Well...

I appreciate that he wants to share something with me.

Annoying
It's annoying.

I just want to carry on what I was watching.

But it's true
that annoys me sometimes.

One day, we were each enjoying web-surfing on the bed,

Then he tried to show me something

It's a picture of a face that was smashed by a car

but had been restored by doctors

Isn't it amazing
that doctors
can do this?

But it must have scars and clitches, I don't want to see it

The before and after pictures
are marvelous

I could see that we had different point of view of this picture.

I said I don't want to see it

You might get creased by it

but I feel empathy for the man and that's painful

I was upset by Merv because he kept on suggesting that I see the picture even though I refused a few times.

Finally, my temper exploded.

You just tilted the screen so I saw the picture again!

I don't want to share his pain!

My mood turned so miserable after seeing someone's injured face that night.

Silence filled the room for a while.

Then Alex handed me his tablet
without words.

And there were cute puppies
on the screen.

His response made me giggle a bit.

But I pretended like it didn't help me at all.

Then he passed me his tablet again.

... What?
